Veterans' Week

Veterans' Week, Indigenous Veterans Day and Remembrance Day

Every November, we take time to honour all the brave soldiers who have fought for our freedom, and who continue to serve. Indigenous Veterans Day on November 8 is celebrated every year across Canada to commemorate the contributions of First Nations, Inuit, and Métis Veterans and to honor their sacrifices in war and conflict. Their sacrifices come with a challenge of equality and recognition, which are often overlooked. It is essential that we recognize their heroism and resilience not only as a tribute to their service, but as a meaningful step towards reconciliation.

On November 11, we observe Remembrance Day to honor all military personnel who have fought for our freedom. This Veteran's Week, let's support indigenous causes, educate ourselves, attend local events, and wear a poppy as a symbol of remembrance to pay our heartfelt respect to all military personnel. It is a time to reflect on the deep gratitude we hold for their selfless sacrifices. These days serve as reminders of the importance of a world where all individuals live with peace and harmony.
