Black History Month

Every February, Canadians recognize Black History Month - a time dedicated to recognize the pivotal role Black Canadians have played in shaping our history, culture, and economy. It is an opportunity to reflect on the ongoing contributions of the Black communities and celebrate their achievements.

We encourage our clients and their employees to take time to continue the conversation around diversity, equity, and inclusion. This can include offering learning opportunities on anti-racism and equity, spotlighting Black voices within your organization, and ensuring that diversity and inclusion efforts extend beyond February. We have included some resources below for you to share with your employees:

- The Ontario Black History Society is an organization in Ontario that is devoted to the study, preservation and promotion of Black History.

- The Canadian Encyclopedia provides accurate information about Black Canadians and their history. It includes educational resources, along with some videos and photos.
- The Government of Canada highlights incredible stories of a few Black Canadians who have made and continue to make enormous contributions to the well-being and prosperity of Canada.

It is important to remember that inclusion is not a seasonal initiative - it is an ongoing commitment. We encourage employers to explore opportunities to deepen their knowledge and strengthen their DEI practices throughout the year.
